Concord Law School's free online social media law micro-credential course is self-paced and covers the legal implications of posting or sharing content on social media. Created by Concord Law School's expert instructors, you'll gain valuable legal knowledge and skills that will serve your career both now and in the future. No prior law school experience is required.

A micro-credential is a short-term commitment and pathway to new skills that can be applied almost immediately to your personal and professional life. In just four short modules, you'll have completed the course and earned your micro-credential while covering the following topics:

Module 1:

Introduction to Social Media Law

Module 2:

Intellectual Property

Module 3:

Free Speech and Its Limitations

Module 4:

Social Media Policy and Ethics

If you're ready to gain a new set of skills and competencies that can refresh your resume, sign up for our free social media law course and start learning from the leaders in online legal education.
